3. Become A Writer

There are a lot of writing jobs on the internet that you can do at home. This can range from being a blogger to writing your own eBooks and selling them online. If you love to write, there are many ways you can have an at-home job and get paid for doing what you love.

Here are a few ways you can approach making money from writing:

- * Work as a freelancer and apply to the many thousands of job listings you can find online.
- * Start your own writing business where you serve a clientele of people that you love to work with.
- * Create your own books and information products that you sell, building your loyal audience along the way.
- * Publish free content (think blogs, social media) and monetize it with offers for products you get paid for.

Which you decide will probably depend on your immediate needs, preferences and long term goals.

Pick One Approach to Focus On

Many writers try to balance trying to get clients and creating their own info products and that is a tough way to go. Often the products never get done or the client work suffers. Instead, put your full effort into one thing and you'll see success much more quickly. Eventually, you can start adding and adjusting as you see some success, but when you're brand new and just learning the ropes, doing more than one thing dilutes your success.

Be the Best at What You Do

If you're working with clients, always do your best work, meet your deadlines and avoid making excuses. Be prepared for constructive criticism and respond to it appropriately. If you have a new client, first impressions are critical, so do everything you can to ensure their experience with you is flawless. A new client is potentially a repeat client that can earn you a lot of money over time, so make the best impression possible.

If you're venturing out on your own, creating your own products or publishing content yourself, always think of how you can serve your audience best and do what you can to do deliver that. Check out what other people are doing in your niche and work to stand out from the crowd to grow a loyal audience.
